SUPPORTING YOUR STUDENT THROUGH ORIENTATION

As your student moves on to this new chapter in their lives, your role will change. Remember that your student may still need you for support and advice, even if they don't ask for it. Here are some ways you can help:

- Recognize the effort they are putting in at school; express interest in their area of study.
- Listen to your student when they confide in you; try not to interrupt them.
- Be knowledgeable about resources on and off campus so you can encourage help-seeking behaviors.
- Focus on helping your student find solutions, rather than solving problems for them.
- Highlight opportunities to socialize on campus and encourage your student to get involved within student life.
- If your student takes medication, ensure that there is a plan in place for continued care for them in this new environment.
- Ask questions and continue to have difficult conversations (eating habits, dating, drugs/ alcohol, sex, etc.). Your student will be facing these topics and they may need guidance on how to make healthy decisions.

Remember that your student is not alone. Many support services on campus and individuals such as peers, faculty and staff are happy to help support your student and their success. And, they have you; we're in this together.

NAVIGATING THIS TRANSITION

As a parent, guardian, or family member, you may feel concerned/anxious/nervous about your student's transition to AMDA. Starting at a new school can be an overwhelming experience, at first, and being in a major city poses its own unique challenges. Your support during this time is critical to your student's success.

It is important to understand that AMDA's program is unique to other school curricula. Your student may be scheduled to be in class from the morning until evening. Additionally, they are expected to schedule rehearsals and complete other assigned homework outside of class. If your student says they are busy, believe them. AMDA's academic programs can be physically, mentally, and emotionally demanding, which is important to be aware of. It is beneficial to check in with your student to see how they are feeling, in all three of these areas.

Some parents anticipate that they will know exactly what is going on with their student with regard to academics and their health, but this may not always be the case. Given federal laws and policies—including but not limited to the Family Educational and Privacy Act—students over the age of 18 have a right to privacy, and thus it is up to the student what information is shared. Having an open conversation about this early on is essential, so that you can navigate this transition together.

SUPPORTING YOUR STUDENT

Some students thrive with newfound independence, while others struggle to manage classes and outside commitments. This may be the first time a student is living away from home and making their own decisions. It can be challenging to allow them to make their own choices and sometimes, mistakes. It is developmentally appropriate for students to seek independence as this is a time where they are fostering/forming their identities. Students may share new things about themselves during this time. It is crucial to listen to them with an open mind.

Please try to be patient as your student expresses their opinions and feelings, even if they differ from yours. Many students experience difficulty in the following areas:

- Newfound freedom.
- Time management.
- New schedule and expectations.
- Homesickness.
- Social community & relationship development.

The issues above are expected during the transition to adulthood, but if they persist or are accompanied by feelings of anxiety or depression, further professional assessment is needed. Most symptoms of mental health conditions are present by the age of 24, so being aware of some common symptoms/warning signs can help you look out for them.

The following are some signs that a student might be in distress:

- Depressed mood.
- Changes in appetite.
- Heightened anxiety.
- Changes in mood or behavior.
- Excessive weight gain/loss.
- Low energy.
- Decreased motivation
- Changes in sleep patterns.
- Increased frequency of illnesses.
- Hopelessness.
- Increased irritability.
- Talking/joking about death or dying/suicide.

It can be hard to distinguish whether a change in your student is something more urgent or concerning, so it's best to be direct with what you've noticed. Say "It seems like you are struggling to get out of bed in the morning. Can you tell me what you're feeling?" This opens up a dialogue and lets your student know you care about their well-being.

Sometimes, students are not ready for the AMDA experience. In these instances, a student may benefit from taking a semester off from school and returning when they are able. Other students may come to realize that AMDA is not the right fit for them. This can be a difficult realization to come to, as many students are excited by the prospect of starting school. Support your student's decision.

ORIENTATION CHECK-IN & MOVE-IN

9:00 AM - 12:00 PM

All new incoming, 5Z, 7AC, and transfer students must check in during Orientation Check-In to receive any needed documents and materials. It is also the last chance before school to review any last requirements needed before you begin school; failure to come to check in may result in a student not being able to attend classes on the first day.

Students will receive their student ID cards during Check-In. Those students who live on campus, called residential students, will also receive their room keys during Check-In.

All Students Required to Attend Orientation Check In & Move In.

Students are assigned a move in time based on the residence halls they are assigned or their status as a commuter student. A commuter student is a student who does not live in student housing and commutes to campus for classes.

Commuter Students: 9:00 AM - 10:00 AM

Bungalows, Vine Street Residence Hall, Yucca Street Apartments: 9:00 AM - 10:00 AM

Franklin Residence Hall: 10:00 AM - 11:00 AM

As a new member of the residential community, we hope you will take advantage of our social events/programming, resources, and services to truly make this you "home away from home."

WHAT WILL MY MOVE-IN PROCESS LOOK LIKE?

On move-in day, please report directly to the Tower Building (6305 Yucca Street, Los Angeles, CA 90028) at your scheduled appointment time to begin the process of moving into your room.

Please limit what you bring for move-in to what you can carry yourself, but no larger than what can fit into one moving cart (dimensions are 34 inches deep x 28 inches wide x 38 inches long). Please note that staff has a limited amount of dollies to help you move.

Additionally, cars cannot be left unattended in front of the residence halls while students are moving in. Double parking is only permitted for unloading student belongings but not while moving items into student rooms. Please unload your car using the unloading zones and then find either street or garage parking.

You may only arrive with two (2) other people.

Staff from our Orientation, Housing & Residential Life, and Student Affairs teams will be present on-campus throughout the days of move-in yet staff does ask for flexibility and grace as this team supports student move-in.

GUEST VISITATION (RESIDENCE HALLS)

After New Student Orientation, residential students must request through Student Affairs. Guests are permitted in AMDA's residence halls; guests may not visit classes or demonstrations and are not permitted to stay overnight in housing. Before any guest visits AMDA students must complete a visitor request form and have documentation reviewed by the Student Affairs team. If receiving approval, the student will be notified and the guests will be permitted. Additionally, guests may not loiter in any area of the lobby or in the immediate vicinity of any housing facilities.

Approved visitors are permitted on campus during the following times:

- Daily: 9:00 AM -10:00 PM

Students must complete and submit to Student Affairs for administrative approval 3 business days before proposed guest visitation day.
